The Fourth Sunday of Lent

March 11, 2018

First Reading: II Chronicles 36:14-16, 19-23

The exile of the Jews lasted 70 years, as predicted. The Persian king Cyrus finally releases the captives so that they could return home and rebuild Jerusalem.

Second Reading: Ephesians 2:4-10

All Christians have been raised from death and enthroned with Christ in heaven. This salvation is God's pure gift, and not the result of good works.

Gospel: John 3:14-21

John interrupts his narrative to discourse on the sending of the Father's Son Jesus to bring life to a dead world. Contrasting light and darkness, the evangelist explains how the light gets lost by sin.

Reflection by Rev. Leonard N. Peterson

Anyone who has ever imagined himself/herself as the director of a movie knows that he or she will need to say "Lights! Camera! Action!" many times over. That's the necessary trio of directions to cast and crew for each "take" of a scene. Arguably, the lighting is the most important. Otherwise the camera lens is "blind" to any and all action by even the most accomplished actors.

Certainly darkness can be annoying. The "victims" of it -you and me- find ourselves stumbling around. When we're indoors, we might act like bumper cars colliding with furniture or walls, especially in a strange room. Or we knock over a valuable vase, with the crash of the china being our noisy rebuke. All in a frantic search for the light switch.

There is a serious psychological condition, a winter time depression that afflicts many people and baffles the scientists who study it. Its official name is "seasonal affective disorder", a term that produces the cute acronym SAD. People who suffer from it are particularly sensitive to the lack of light especially during the fall and winter. They rejoice in the other two seasons.

How dark had to be the nights in a world lit only by candles! That was the way it was when Our Savior, the Son of God, personally visited our planet. So apt for Him to use light and darkness in His teaching as symbolic of the contrast between sin and sanctity. He wanted our human souls to be loosed from Satan's lies and our gullibility.

Despite our discovery and advances in the use of electricity, that enables our engineers to mimic daylight, we can grasp the potential for danger that darkness offers. When we sin, we know for certain that our inner light has either dimmed, or gone out. Oh we can pretend that everything is right between God and ourselves. We are experts at rationalization. After all, we've been doing it ever since age seven or so. We make excuses that would rival some of our best storytellers. But deep down we know.

Naturally, we look for someone or something to blame. "The Church is too demanding." Or "It's my weakness." Or "I don't need to go to confession for that." On and on it goes. But deep down we know. We could say that Lent is the season that tells us to wake up, and turn the lights on.

On the matter of light and sound, there is an amusing observation made by Craig Marckwardt that may help us keep our Lenten resolution to guard our speech. He said, "Light travels faster than sound. That's why some people appear bright until you hear them speak!"
