Fourth Sunday of Easter April 22, 2018

First Reading: Acts 4:8-12

This is Peter's first discourse before the Sanhedrin, in which he precisely answers the question put to him. Note that Peter is described as "filled with the Holy Spirit."

Second Reading: I John 3:1-2

This "letter" is really an exhortation to the Johannine community. Being "children of God" includes not belonging to the world; leading lives of holiness; and having confidence in a great future life.

Gospel: John 10:11-18

Jesus describes Himself as the "good shepherd" who is willing to die for the sake of his sheep. The "other sheep" mentioned here could refer to future believers, or to the coming of the Gentiles into the community; or other Christian communities than John's.

Reflection by Rev. Leonard N. Peterson

We Americans proudly describe ourselves as living in “the home of the brave.” Certainly the composer Francis Scott Key had the military in mind when he wrote the words of our national anthem. But bravery is inherent also in our law enforcement personnel, firefighters, first responders, medical professionals, teachers, foreign missionaries, Catholics facing present day persecution and murder. The list is longer than this, and I apologize in advance for forgetting other groups. Obviously there are as many examples of bravery as there are courageous people. Even if we lack precision in our definition, we know bravery when we see it.

I suggest for your reflection this weekend the two prominent figures in the Scripture stories read at Mass: St. Peter and Our Lord Jesus. First of all, St. Peter. Here we find him standing bravely before the chief Council of Israel, the Sanhedrin. According to the Talmudic sources, the “Great Sanhedrin” was the premier such body, with counterparts in every town and village. It was a court of 71 sages who met on fixed occasions in the Jerusalem Temple. Something like our Supreme Court.

Now we read of St. Peter, the humble fisherman, the same man who had denied Jesus; the same who “wept bitterly” after his denial. Up to now he had been scared stiff of the high placed Jews and Romans, hiding from them in a locked upper room. But here he was, answering their questions about Jesus so bravely. When they asked him “How did you do this?” (healing of a lifelong crippled man). “What power and whose name did you use?” Peter answers “Through the power of Jesus Christ of Nazareth whom you crucified.” Here my friends, was newfound bravery brought on by the Holy Spirit dwelling in Peter.

Turning to Our Lord Jesus in the gospel. We know His bravery is a given. We know all about His public life. So when He claims to be the “Good Shepherd,”

We are Easter People and Alleluia is our Song.

-St. John Paul II

as opposed to all the hired scoundrels that took the job merely for pay, and practiced CCL (Could Care Less) about the sheep, we believe. He is more than good. Facing the inevitable attacks from lesser shepherds. Or any of the “wolves” among the Scribes and Pharisees.

Here on this fourth of the Seven Sundays of Easter, more than halfway through the great seven week long “day,” we find ourselves at a challenging place where we might not choose to be. We have to face the questions: “By whose policies do you live?” “Who is your spiritual guide?”

With strong secularists against us, and a popular culture that is uncomfortable with Christ, to make an answer and live accordingly is daunting. All things considered, our time may be worse than St. Peter’s. Is our Church, built on this “Rock of Ages,” truly “the home of the brave?”

In making an answer, remember that “You are your own doctor when it comes to curing cold feet.”
